The Point of View.
The astronomer says they have discovered a sun spot 100,000 miles wide. And yet we suppose it doesn't look any bigger to an astronomer than a sun-spot does to most people.—Houston Post.

Intellectualism.
Intellectual culture has no necessary relation to purity or excellence of character. In the new testament, appeals are constantly made to the heart of man and to the spirit we are of, whilst allusions to the intellect are of rare occurrence.—Samuel Smiles.

PROGRAM FOR TUESDAY AFTERNOON.

Subject: "Varied Menus."

Menu:
Omelet
Nut Doughnuts
Horseshoe Curves
Banana Compote

Nut Doughnuts.
1 1/2 cups sugar, 4 tablespoons butter, 1/2 cup milk, 3 eggs, 4 teaspoonsful baking powder, 1 cupful chopped English walnut meats, 1 teaspoonful vanilla extract, 1 teaspoonful lemon extract, 1/2 teaspoonful salt, flour to make soft dough.
Cream butter and sugar together, add eggs well beaten, milk, salt, extracts, baking powder, nuts, and sufficient flour to make soft dough. Roll out, cut with cutter and fry in hot crisco a golden color. Drain and sift with sugar.

Sufficient for seventy-five doughnuts.
Banana Compote.
Roll 1 cupful sugar and 1/2 cupful water 10 minutes. Add juice and grated rind of 1/2 lemon, also 1/2 teaspoonful vanilla. Allow above mixture to cool.
Four over four bananas which have been cut in half lengthwise. Allow this to chill. Sprinkle with finely chopped walnut meats. Serve with whipped cream.

Everything is being put in readiness for the Gazette Home Economics School which Miss Peet will open at Myers Theatre Tuesday afternoon at 2:30. The women of Janesville and vicinity are much interested in this Better Foods, Better Homes campaign, and are eagerly awaiting the opening of the school. The lecturer is adding the last touches to the arrangement of her domestic science platform at Myers Theatre and purchasing supplies for her cooking demonstration. The last is no small matter, as Miss Peet intends to cook enough of everything for all the women who attend her classes to have a taste. She is not dismayed by the planning to attend her cooking and cookery demonstration here. She says she always gains enthusiasm and inspiration from a large crowd and doesn't mind the least mind cooking for a lot of company.

Will Be Housekeepers' Vacation.
A simple and comfortable seating is being arranged at Myers Theatre so that the housewives of Rock county may spend profitable and pleasant afternoons this week. They will thus be relieved from housekeeping duties for several hours each day, but will at the same time be learning helpful ideas and suggestions which will make their housework easier and more efficient.

Good Things Served.
All of the foods that are to be cooked by Miss Peet on her gas stove, in the brilliant array of aluminum cooking utensils that form part of her domestic science equipment, will be served to the women who attend Miss Peet's school. No matter how many hundred women attend the Gazette Home Economics School, every lady will be sure to get a sample of Miss Peet's cooking. She says, "The proof is in the pudding is the eating," and she wants the women to judge for themselves whether or not they like her cookery methods.

Special Evening Lecture.
Miss Peet will give a lecture and cookery lesson every afternoon this week, beginning tomorrow. She will give a special evening session on Wednesday at which she will demonstrate one of her most famous recipes, that of baked ice cream. All of Miss Peet's recipes are worth while and they will be one of the most popular features of the Gazette Home Economics School. Booklets containing the recipes of Miss Peet also promises to furnish a further supply of the published in the columns of the Gazette. These recipes are thoroughly and absolutely reliable and are particularly valuable to the average housekeeper because they do not call for expensive ingredients.

Miss Peet will give considerable attention to the subject of economy during her course of housekeeping lectures at Myers Theatre. She will show how economy means not merely doing without and stinting oneself, but that it means efficiency in management and the elimination of food values and the waste of waste. She will demonstrate that a good economist is a good cook, one who cooks well and a sufficient quantity for her table and if anything remains it is saved and worked over for the next meal. She will emphasize economy of time and labor as well as of dollars and cents and shows how to simplify the recurrent tasks of housekeeping in such a manner as to eliminate drudgery.

All the women who attend the Gazette Home Economics School are urged to bring pencils and pads for taking notes of Miss Peet's lectures and methods of cooking. Every woman in Rock county is urged to attend this Home Economics School and lend her support and co-operation in making it a great success.

COL. MARTIN GAVE FINE TALK AT Y. M. C. A. SUNDAY

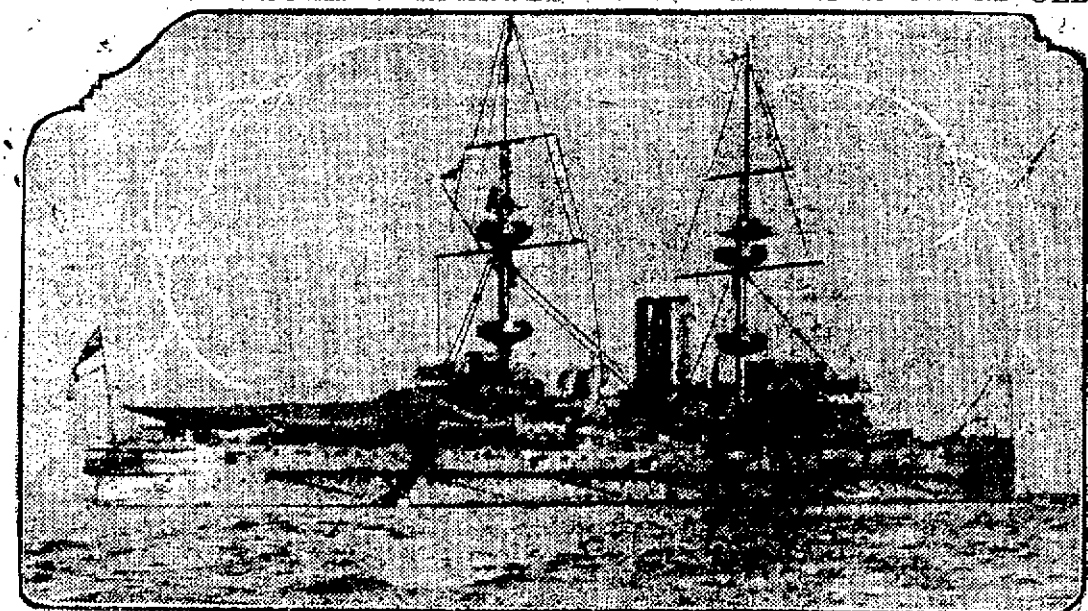

Colonel J. C. Martin of Madison, as speaker at the memorial service yesterday afternoon at the Y. M. C. A. building, told in an extremely interesting manner of many brave experiences that seldom if ever appear in history. His facts were new ones to the younger generation present, and fitting to the occasion. He was forced to shorten his discourse to catch the four o'clock Northwestern train to Madison, where he was scheduled to talk at a similar service in the evening.

There were about one hundred men, young and old, at the meeting, including a good representation from the G. A. R. Stanley Horwood sang a solo being accompanied by Frank Albright at the piano.

When Col. Martin left, J. F. Carle was called on for a few remarks, and his speech ended up in an old-time war song concert, accompanied by the six-piece orchestra, and led by Alfred Olson.

KILL YARD WATCH AND MAKE ESCAPE

Milwaukee Road Man Shot Yesterday Morning at Roundout by Trio, Who Made Escape.

Police departments and train crews of all railroads of northern Illinois and southern Wisconsin were notified yesterday to be on the lookout for three men who shot and killed Thomas Morrison, a Chicago, Milwaukee and St. Paul watchman at the transfer and switchyards at Roundout, a short distance this side of Chicago, at 3 a. m. yesterday morning. According to the descriptions telegraphed to Chief of Police Champion, railway officials and news here, the men were about thirty-three and forty-five years of age. All were smooth shaven. One wore grey trousers and one had lost his cap in the escape, furnishing the only clues which J. W. Cowan, of the Milwaukee road detective force, had to work on.

The men, previous to the killing, had inquired for train connections to Geneva and Zanda. While the railway sleuths are scouring the country in the vicinity of the latter places, they are also working on the presumption that the murderers, as soon as they had killed the watchman, abandoned their plans of going to Wisconsin and went direct to Chicago to lose themselves in the mazes of the great city.

Detective Cowan, the first of the road's force to be located by telegraph, will be remembered as the officer shot at Anderson's Crossing, near the Rock county poor farm and station, when he was waiting for a gang of men who were attempting to wreck trains by the placing of ties on the track some time ago.

COOKVILLE

Cooksville, May 31.—Mr. and Mrs. Fred Miller are mourning the loss of their little daughter June, who died Tuesday, May 25, at 11 p. m. She was as well as usual until about 4 o'clock, when she was taken with convulsions. Dr. Wentzel, from Stoughton, was called, but of no avail. Had she lived one month longer, she would have been old enough to have the light and light of her parents' hearts. "Of such is the kingdom." The funeral was held at the home, one mile south of Cooksville, Thursday morning at ten o'clock. Father, the Minister of Cooksville officiating. Four little girls were bearers, and four acted as flower girls. A father, mother and sister are mourning. A large gathering of relatives and friends assembled to accompany the little one to her last resting place. The flowers were many and beautiful.

Mrs. Mattie Ross, from Newport, Minnesota, will stay a few weeks with her sister, Mrs. Miller.

Mr. and Mrs. Allen Vinay, from Edgerton, were calling on friends here last Thursday.

Mrs. T. J. Van Wormer has been quite ill the past week.

Chester Miller and family attended the Jesse James show in Evansville Thursday night.

Miss Andrea Berg has been helping Mrs. Busby with her sewing last week.

Ole Furseth has put a nice wire fence between him and the cemetery. He looks so much better than the old dilapidated board one. If the others that join would do the same it would look still better.

Grading has begun on the town line road, but little has been done on account of rain. Will it ever stop?

VACUUM GROOMING.

All the houses of the park department of New York city are now carried and groomed with a vacuum outfit. It carries away all the dust and dirt and hair that formerly filled the stable at grooming time. The vacuum grooming set consists of a high-pressure vacuum fan directly connected with a one-sixth horsepower motor. The fan revolves in an aluminum case, to which the vacuum curvycomb is connected by means of a long hose. The new machine benefits the hostler, for he no longer runs the risk of infecting his lungs by breathing in the microbes of disease.

DYSPEPSIA OVERCOME

Tone-Up the Stomach with Hood's Sarsaparilla.

When you have dyspepsia your life is miserable. You have a bad taste in your mouth, a tenderness at the pit of your stomach, a feeling of puffiness, headache, heartburn, and sometimes nausea.

Dyspepsia is difficult digestion—that is what the word means—and the only way to get rid of it is to give vigor and tone to the stomach and the whole digestive system. Hood's Sarsaparilla, sold by all druggists, is the one medicine which acts on the stomach through the blood and also directly. Its beneficial effects are felt at once. Improvement begins immediately.

Hood's Sarsaparilla purifies the blood, makes the rich red blood that is needed for perfect digestion, and builds up the whole system. No other medicine can take its place.

LOCAL ODD FELLOWS TO ATTEND MEETING

Delegates and Others Leave Today for Manitowish to Attend State Convention.

Delegates and representatives of the Janesville Odd-Fellow lodges and the Rebekah organizations will attend the state convention which will be held at Manitowish June 1, 2 and 3rd. The following will go as delegates from the lodges, Mr. and Mrs. J. V. Paul, Raymond Lee, O. D. Antisoul, William Douglas, Miss Alice Joyce, Mrs. Dickerson and Mrs. Henry Turner. May and Mrs. James A. Fathens, George G. Waterman, J. E. Elia Gibson will attend, and on Wednesday night Mrs. Gibson, Rebekah lodge 171, will receive the decoration of hospitality.

Tuesday will be devoted to registration, appointment of committees and business sessions. A public reception will be held tomorrow evening. Mayor Stolze will give the address of welcome. Responses will be made by Paul Mahoney of La Crosse, deputy grand master, and Mrs. Barbara of Stevens Point, of the Rebekah assembly.

Wednesday will be given up to ritual work at the opera house. The Rebekahs will put on their work at the Orpheum theatre. A dance will be held at both halls in the evening. Thursday will be the final day of the convention. Officers will be elected and the next convention city selected. The visitors will take a trolley ride to Two Rivers, where the local singing crew will give an exhibition drill.

PILOTS DEFY DEATH IN SPEED-MAD RACE

Of the individual entries, De Palma's Mercedes is notable. De Palma had victory almost within his grasp in 1912 but with one lap to go was forced to walk his car in while Dawson sped steadily around for the prize. Because of this piece of bad luck and because of his previous records on this and courses in other cities, many felt he was about due to win. Bob Burman in a car of that name, is another to be counted in.

Based on the elimination tests "Howdy" Wilcox has it on the field. He made a lap at the rate of 88.2 miles a minute. De Palma's Mercedes made the next best with 97.6. Resta's Peugeot was third with 97.5. Cooper's and Anderson's Stutz cars made the next best time with 97.7 and 96.4 respectively. With three Stutz cars among the first five in the eliminations, it is easy to see why they are favorites in the betting.

For the same reason the Sunbeam team ranks high. Porporato's Sunbeam made 85.1, ranking sixth, and Sunbeam that qualified with Oldfield at the wheel came seventh with an average of 83.7 miles an hour. Oldfield was slated for a time to drive this car, but later was crowded out. The third Sunbeam with Grant driving ranked twelfth with 89.2.

The cars drew their numbers for this race as the result of the elimination trials. Wilcox's Stutz drew No. 1 because it made the fastest speed. The Mercedes was next speediest and so on down the line.

Many eliminations. There were forty-one original entries for today's race, but the speed required to qualify (eighty miles an hour) was too stiff a test for many and they were eliminated by the wholesale. Others could not get into shape in time and withdrew.

There was an element in attendance today who prayed above all for an American victory. These patriotic souls had in mind the fact that the honors for the four past five hundred mile classics were even with two Americans and two foreign cars having won firsts. Dope which at first favored the Peugeots, gradually shifted until the Stutz cars were favorites.

Winners of the four speedway events include drivers of two Indianapolis cars. The four winners and their cars are: Ray Harroun with a Norman; Joe Dawson with a National; Jules Goux with a Peugeot and René Thomas with a Delage. Goux and Thomas were not here today. Thomas lies wounded in France and Goux is connected with the French army.

Troubles in Europe had little effect on today's race. It cut down slightly on the number of European racers, but German, French and English cars raced side by side. The German Harroun tried out the speed of the Dinghies, Dario Resta with his French Peugeot, and Percy Graham.

another English driver. There were no German drivers.

Other prominent American drivers were Carlson and Rickbacker. The list of foreign entries contains famous cars and drivers. They are, three Sunbeams, three Peugeots, De Palma's Mercedes, J. De Palma's Delage and the Bugatti.

BIG RING BATTLES STAGED IN NEW YORK

Jim Coffey Will Meet Flynn, the Veteran Trial Horse Dillon and Smith Mingle Again.

(By Barry Paris.) New York, May 31.—Near champions galore are to exhibit their fists before two New York crowds today and tonight. This afternoon, at Ebbetts field in Brooklyn, four ten round bouts, brimming together a bunch of top-notchers, are scheduled. Tonight Harry Pollock's Brighton Beach club makes its debut, with Fireman Jim Flynn and Jim Coffey, the Dublin Giant, as the big offering.

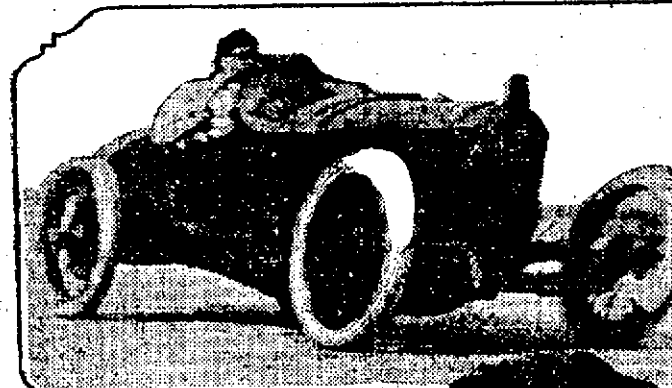

The Flynn-Coffey bout has aroused a tremendous lot of interest. The bout means much if it ends one way—With a Coffey victory. In that event the big Irishman probably will land a bout with Champion Jess Willard. If Flynn beats or even holds him anywhere near even Coffey likely will be discarded as an opponent for Johnson's conqueror, Flynn Trial Horse.

Flynn is being used solely as a trial horse. No one conceals the Puerto Rican's chance with Willard. But if Coffey decisively whips Flynn he will have proven his worth as a battler and will be entitled to a crack at the champion.

Coffey has the greatest following any New York fighter has had in a decade. He is of pure Irish descent and the sons of Erin are behind him to a man. If he should beat Flynn and later west the title away from Willard he will be the first real Irishman to hold the honors since Peter Maher.

Dillon vs. Smith. Two aspirants for a chance at Willard will meet in the main event. At Ebbetts' field this afternoon. They are Jack Dillon, the Indianapolis bear-

PICK RESTA TO WIN SPEEDWAY RACE

Dario Resta and his car. Upper photograph taken while machine was going 100 miles per hour.

By virtue of his victories in the Vanderbilt and Grand Prize races at San Francisco recently, Dario Resta is the favorite for the next Indianapolis 500-mile race. Resta is driving a Peugeot. The combination is one the bookies are listing at prohibitive odds, fearing the driver and car alike. Either would be dangerous in any circumstances.

cat, and Gunboat Smith, Jim Buckley's heavyweight. Dillon and Smith have both been hurrying challenges in Willard's direction ever since the big Kansas unhorsed Jackson at Havana. Neither has been taken very seriously. Smith has been beaten several times recently while Dillon has been regarded as being too light.

The Indianapolis battler only recently graduated from the middleweight class. Only a year ago he made 155 six hours before a fight. During the past year, however, he has taken on considerable weight. He has been battling big fellows for some time and has come out victorious in most of the encounters.

Was Never Beaten. Dillon has never been decisively beaten, in recent years at least. He has bested Jim Flynn, Gunboat Smith, once, Bartling Levinsky three times and several other lesser lights among the light heavies.

Al McCoy, who claims the middleweight championship, but whose claim to it is recognized much as Doc Cook's discovery of the North Pole, is booked to clash with George Chip in one of Ebbetts' field engagements. McCoy got his claim to the middleweight title by knocking out Chip a year ago. Just where Chip was entitled to the middleweight championship has never been proven.

Battling Lahn and Dutch Brandt, who rank among the most likely candidates for Kid Williams' bantamweight crown, meet in another of the clashes.

NATE TILLIE WILL PITCH FOR FAST BELLOIT TEAM

Nate Tillie, whom the Janesville Cardinals discovered three years ago from Albany, has been signed to pitch for the fast Fairbanks-Morse team, the "Fairies" of Beloit. Tillie has left the Belvidere Nationals, and together with Jack Wootton, will be the two hurlers for the Beloit nine. Wycoff, is another Belvidere player who has been signed for the Beloit team. The Fairbanks-Morse company has erected an excellent ball park for their employees and a skilled ball team will be put in the field.

An interesting story, published in Chicago, that Judge Kenesaw M. Landis had not seen a ball game this year, because he did not want to be influenced in deciding the Federal trust-busting suit, was exploded when a photographer snapped the judge sitting in a box at one of the Chicago parks, deeply absorbed in the play. It then came out that he had seen games at all three Chicago parks and is about as regular an attendant at games as ever.

Miss Virginia Fiskinger, who does one of those barefoot dances, says all ball players should learn classic dancing. It would be probably just as well if some of them also learned a little baseball.

Joe Massaguer, manager of the champion Cuban Reds, who canceled his proposed tour of the states because of unfavorable weather conditions, has arranged for new bookies to the east on his way back to Cuba, and may yet retrieve some of the losses incurred in bringing the Cuban National league champions to this country. Gossip has it strong that Ban Johnson is planning to make Bobb Wallace, Browns' shortstop, an umpire in the American League, either this season or next. Wallace began to show up as a player about four years ago, but has been kept on the payroll just the same. Experts think he would make a good man in the umpire's blue.

Ad Brennan, the left-hander, once with the Reds, then with the Quakers, then a lumberer to the Federal league, must be fast retrograding. He has been sent to the little Colonial league—the Federals' only farm—and is said to have little skill remaining. And it seems only yesterday that he was a crack southpaw. How time does skip along!

Miss Virginia Fiskinger, who does one of those barefoot dances, says all ball players should learn classic dancing. It would be probably just as well if some of them also learned a little baseball.

Joe Massaguer, manager of the champion Cuban Reds, who canceled his proposed tour of the states because of unfavorable weather conditions, has arranged for new bookies to the east on his way back to Cuba, and may yet retrieve some of the losses incurred in bringing the Cuban National league champions to this country. Massaguer is a sportsman and deserved better at the hands of the weather man than he received.

They might as well count the hidden ball trick out. As the result of the row between Umpire Rigler and Manager Herzog of the Reds over a play of this kind, President Tener has declared himself as of the opinion that the play is not sportsmanlike and, while he can not prevent it by direct action, he has instructed the umpires on the bases to watch the man with the ball, which means that the runner will be tipped off and on his guard and that the play can hardly be pulled unless the base runner is so absolutely dense that there is no hope for his salvation.

World's Greatest Racecourse, Built in 1909 by Four Indianapolis Sportsmen, Continues to Draw Horde of Race Fans to Great International 500-Mile Race

INDIANAPOLIS MOTOR SPEEDWAY

Year after year a hundred thousand race enthusiasts, from all parts of the world, flock to Indianapolis to worship the great Joss. Speed, in that most magnificent of all his temples, the Indianapolis motor speedway. A fitting ceremony is provided for the occasion, the great Indianapolis 500-mile race, a combat between men of iron and machines of steel. Fighting 500 miles in a grim speed duel that knows no quarter, these modern gladiators stage a spectacle unrivaled in the history of the world. In the ensemble the racecourse itself plays a most important part. It is the background upon which the moving cars, and the rapids of spectators, with their gay attire, are painted. Without it, the 500-mile race would be impossible. The chief feature of the concourse, as impressed upon the spectator, is its vastness. Covering 328 acres of ground, with more than a mile of grandstands, seating 75,000 people, and forty-three buildings, it gives a sensation of tremendous sweep and breadth of space found in no other sport arena. Pastimes may come, and pastimes may go, but as long as the motor car continues to play a dominant part in the affairs of human life, and the longing for speed and the great outdoors still fills the human breast, the Indianapolis motor speedway and its great annual 500-mile affairs will never be without the tremendous following they now enjoy.

Economy or Cheapness WHICH?

You can buy cheaply and yet lose money. You can pay good prices for things, and yet be economical.

For economy means getting the best value for the money you spend.

The goods in this store have been selected with this view of economy. They are some of them low-priced and some of them high-priced. But whichever they are, they are the best value for the money that can be obtained to our knowledge.

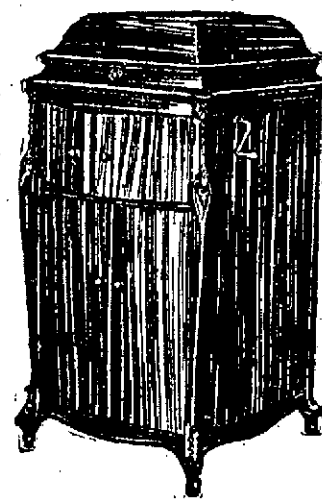

Standard goods like Crisco, Royal Baking Powder and other items that Miss Peet uses, at standard prices—a policy of complete satisfaction or money refunded—and a service that stops at nothing within reason—these are the things that keep our old customers year after year, and each day bring us new ones to add to our visiting list.

Miss Peet expressed warm approval of our store and our methods.

Is Centrifugally Clarified by the De Laval Process

Hold up the bottle—you will find every drop absolutely clean and pure.

We have investigated the work done by the De Laval Clarifier and find that it greatly improves the best milk—no matter how carefully it has been handled. Leading Health Authorities are recommending clarification of all milk.

We have always tried to furnish our customers with the best possible milk and for this reason are now clarifying our milk with this machine.

CLARIFIED MILK RE- DUCES FOOD EXPENSE

Many persons do not use as much milk as they should because they feel that it is not as clean as other foods.

The De Laval Clarifier removes every possible objection of this kind. The impurities in milk are removed by centrifugal force, and it is rendered pleasing and palatable.

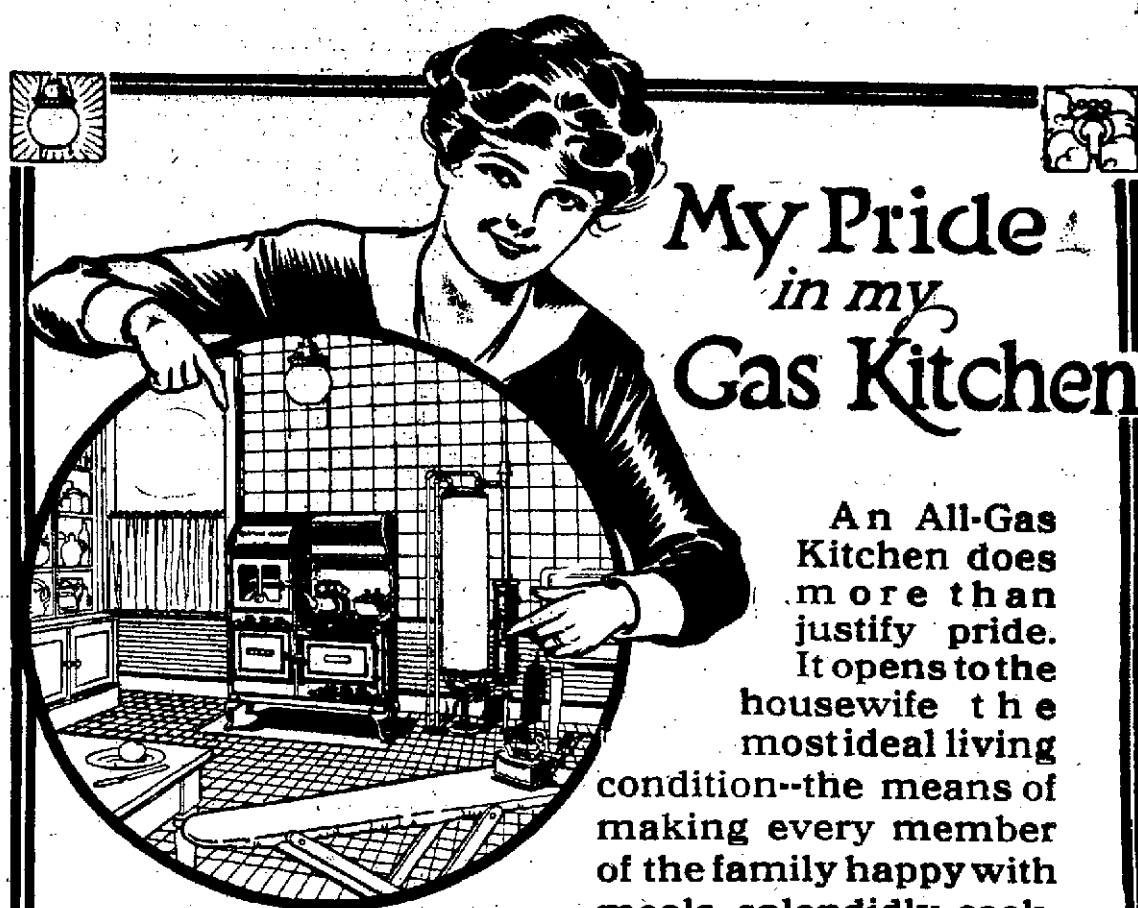

PURE MILK is one of Nature's best foods—one quart being equal in food value to each of the following:

- 8 eggs
- 2 lbs. of Chicken
- 1 lb. Beets
- 5 lbs. Turnips
- 6 lbs. Spinach
- 2 lbs. Potatoes
- 2 lbs. Salt Codfish
- 3 lbs. Fresh Codfish
- 1 lb. Cabbage
- 3 1/2 lb. Lean Beef

All housewives will find that they can reduce the total food cost per month by increasing the use of milk. TRY IT! We will be glad to hear our telephone ring at any time if you want us to deliver more milk.

"Jersey Lily" THE Flour has been a household word in Janesville for over a third of a century. It has met with unflinching success during all that time. Colvin's Bakery, the largest user of good flour in Janesville, has used "Jersey Lily" for over 25 years. Mrs. Flaherty's Home Bakery has been using it for a long period. There are many homes in this city that have never used any other make of flour. And these homes are noted for the fine bread they serve. You can make your bread just as good and just as popular if you use "Jersey Lily" Flour.

Miss Peet Selected Consumer's Ice Because of Its Purity

The Ice which will be used by Miss Peet during her demonstration at The Gazette's Free Domestic Science School was ordered from the Consumer's Pure Ice and Fuel Co., because there is nothing in it that will contaminate the foods used.

A Splendid Acknowledgement of the Quality of This Ice

Janesville housewives should appreciate, as Miss Peet has, the purity of Consumer's Ice.

No home that values the health of its family should have any other Ice than Consumer's. Other ice is dangerous and will contaminate the food which comes in contact with it. Consumer's Ice comes from a beautiful, spring-fed lake which lies at a high elevation and is entirely surrounded by virgin timber. There can be no purer ice.

We Will be Here Next Year

There are a few people in Janesville who would have you believe that we will not be here next year and anyone who takes ice from us this season will not be able to obtain ice anywhere next year. Such statements are utterly false and to quickly give them the lie and brand them false we offer to issue a bond of good faith to anyone who doubts us, insuring that we will be in the Janesville field next year, smiling and doing a flourishing business.

NEED LEADERSHIP IN RURAL COMMUNITIES

DR. HENRY B. FAYILL IN MASTERFUL ADDRESS AT COUNTY Y. M. C. A. BANQUET SATURDAY.

MANY POSSIBILITIES

Ahead for Farmer Youth, Who is the Colossus of Tomorrow—Avoid Isolation of Former Days.

Speaking with emphasis on the paramount importance of county Y. M. C. A. work, which brings together the country people of the various communities in various activities, Dr. Henry B. Fayill, county agent, who made a large farm at Lake Mills, addressed about one hundred and fifty men and boys Saturday night in a most direct and brief manner on the subject, "County Work; A Necessity."

The speaker was so convincing that not a single man present doubted his plans for successful county association work.

His experience on the farm and in the city with the groups or "gangs," as he called them, allowed him to speak with facts. In part, he spoke as follows: "My entire discourse lasting but thirty minutes."

"I find it necessary to readjust my views as to meet this audience and to modify my address, for I understood it was to address a gathering composed of mostly boys. I shall not change my remarks extensively."

"You have spoken of the financial difficulties in your work during the past year this evening. Let me say, if I may, that four-fifths of the real efficiency of any organization is maintaining an ideal system of finance."

"Possibility of Evil."

"I am thoroughly interested in this county association work enterprise, although I can see many possibilities of the greatest evil as well as of the greatest good. Evil of failure alone is enough, for if it is not carried out, it is being entertained, it is an irreparable evil."

"Getting access to the people in the country, or to the farmer whom you are to approach, is a great difficulty. These persons are carrying a peculiar sort of independence, an independence which will not and cannot fuse with county life. In town, a group of boys will join together and form a 'gang'."

"In the country, they are called groups. For years and years the cities have been leading them. The country boys have been taking up this idea."

"A city boy goes to school, and works. He goes home from school and does not work. In the country, the farmer's boy always has work to do. The country boys do not and time to form 'gangs' like the city youths, and this is the reason, I believe, why they do not form groups."

"Then the country work does not come naturally. Then the country work is county association work worth doing in the country."

"Social Leaders."

"For the process will not change a farmer's ideas. The solution of county Y. M. C. A. work lies in contact, or in association by the people of the communities. Something must be done to overcome the isolation of former days. Few people have the time, there must be social leaders appointed to start the organization and to carry it along. We must all foster such a leader, and we must cherish him. It is a known fact, that the average country boy is brighter than the city boy."

"Another question is asked, 'Will this sort of organization keep the boys on the farm?' We have no doubt but what the majority of country farmer boys should remain on the farm. What is the affirmative factor? Interest, inspiration and imagination, I believe, are the solutions."

"Make the farm proposition so interesting that the youth will want to stay on the acres. Farming and the allied things attached to it, demand the highest type of intelligent activity. The overflow of intelligence never took a boy away from the farm. If an organization of this kind can get the boys' interest and desire, he is riveted to the farm, and you can be assured of that. Every farmer is the proprietor of his own factory, and the world needs more of these kinds of factories. I am gratified that I could be with you tonight, and I trust this county will reap huge success from its model organization of association work."

Opening Remarks.

President J. Z. McLaughlin of the Rock county committee and of the county Y. M. C. A. organization followed the banquet with opening remarks, and in a fitting manner outlined in a concise way the developments and achievements of the county work during the two years in Rock county. That the good fellowship spirit was the main idea to be instilled in the men and boys of the county in this sort of work was his main contention. A work of service for your brother was urged by the president in the future. Mr. McLaughlin called for the treasurer's report, which was given very briefly but in a satisfactory manner by Treasurer G. W. Birkenmeyer of Edgerton.

Twenty Dollar Deficit.

The report of finances was on the whole a good one, but Mr. Birkenmeyer spoke with dread of the county work was facing a deficit of some twenty dollars. This will be made up when the subscribers have paid in full the amount they subscribed for the year's work. There is a balance in the treasury to date amounting to $108.98, with a voucher of $110 outstanding. Rock Prairie gets the honor for the past year for having turned over more money than the total subscription list called for in that community.

J. A. Craig gave an interesting talk of the value of county Y. M. C. A. work.

Urges More Funds.

President McLaughlin again took the floor and made a strong address on the need of collecting more funds to carry on the work for another year. "Without money, no organization can exist," he said. "We must get some system commenced whereby we can raise money and we must not leave it to Secretary Markham and not up his time attempting to collect the subscriptions. There are three new communities in the county, started during the past year, and new groups in these new communities. In addition there are five new groups started in the old communities. During the year many boys have joined the church and have been given gifts of their responsibilities. The motto of Rock county in rural Y. M. C. A. should be, 'I am my brother's keeper.'"

Following the president's second message several questions were asked and an open discussion held for fifteen minutes, after which Dr. Fayill gave his masterful address on the subject of "County Work."

New Commitment.

The nominating committee appointed by the president at the early part of the meeting to present a new committee to handle the work for the coming year, made a favorable report by nominating all of the old members to succeed themselves and by naming the following new members of the committee: Edward Vallin, Fulton; J. P. Waddell, Evansville; E. L. Green, Magnolia; E. L. Bingham, Milton; H. O. Nastasio, Bergen; O. A. Peterson of Orfordville. A budget of $2,000 was set for next year.

The old commitment nominated to succeed themselves are as follows: J. Z. McLaughlin, chairman, Janesville; J. P. Kemmerer, vice chairman, Clinton; E. M. Hinton, recording secretary, Milton Junction; C. W. Birkenmeyer, treasurer, Edgerton; F. M. Warner, S. A. Maxson, Milton Junction; D. M. Spicer, Tiffany A. M. Whitford, Milton; Frank Lowery, Footville; C. D. Rosa, Beloit; Solon Cooper, Clinton; L. C. Whittey, L. A. Anderson, Edgerton; S. M. Smith, Janesville; F. W. Stoney, Clinton; L. A. Markham, county secretary, Janesville.

First Oranges in America.

Bernal Diaz del Castillo, who wrote as an eyewitness of Cortes' conquest of Mexico, claims to have introduced oranges into that country, planting a few pipe close to a high "idol house," whose growth was carefully watched over by some curious native priests.

IVORY CARVING OF VERY GREAT VALUE

George S. Parker Receives Exquisite Example of Japanese Carving From Island Empire.

On Saturday last George S. Parker received from the custom house at Chicago one of the handsomest and most complete ivory carvings that has ever been brought to this city. It came from Japan and represents an old man, evidently a rice gatherer, leaning on a gnarled and twisted stick, turning his head to smile at a little baby, who has climbed into his basket and is offering a twig with fruit. Each detail of the exquisite work is carved from one solid block, unusual in Japanese carvings. The facial delineations, the costume, to the handles tied with rope, the basket, with its tiny rope lacing, are all perfect and the work a fine artist. Mr. Parker has one of the finest collections of ivories in this part of the country and the piece received Saturday is by far the finest he has yet purchased.

HONOR CONFEDERATES AT RICHMOND TODAY

Confederate Memorial Institute Opened For Inspection Today In Connection With Veterans' Reunion.

[BY ASSOCIATED PRESS.]

Richmond, Va., May 29.—The Confederate Memorial Institute, known as the Battle Abbey, has been opened for inspection in connection with the United Confederate Veterans' reunion, which is to be held here June 1 to 3. The institute is an interesting part of the collection of permanent memorials of the Civil War, its promoters having had in mind the memorializing of the part played by the South in the great war events of fifty years ago.

The building, completion of which awaits the return of the artist, Charles F. Bauer, from the European war, stands in the western part of Richmond, in the center of a five-acre park, a gift from the state of Virginia. Ground for the structure was broken January 1, 1912, and the corner stone was laid the following May. The building is located on a raised terrace, a broad flight of stone steps flanked on either side by a balustrade, leading from the entrance to the lower levels of the terrace.

The structure, which is faced throughout with Indiana limestone, consists of a central pavilion, with a wing on each side. The total length being 15 feet and the height from the terrace level to the top of the parapet being forty-four feet. At the main entrance a portico of four stone columns of Roman Ionic design, twenty-five feet in height. The two wings on the outside are divided into panels by means of pilasters of a slight projection and the cornice is a large stone, which it is planned will be transformed into carved panels to serve as memorials of some of the great events which the building is designed to commemorate.

The hall in the south wing will be known as the Memorial room, for the decoration of which Thomas E. Ryan of New York and Virginia contributed a large sum. Mr. Hoffbauer has been engaged to decorate the walls of this room with paintings illustrative of the Civil War, but his not completed work, The north wing of the institute will be used as a library. On one side will hang a large painting of Thomas Jefferson and his cabinet, as well as the portraits of the great men. The association intends to make the collection of pictures and books in the library of great historic value. Treatment to the park surrounding the institute to make the grounds as essentially a part of the memorial as the building itself is planned by those in charge of the work. The design of the court of honor includes a central panel of turf with recesses for statues at the sides and ends, they being outlined by a box border between which will be a ground cover of ivy, leading to double rows of magnolias, the foliage of which will make the great frame for the side of the court.

BEAUTIFUL OPERAS PRESENTED HERE

Sheehan Opera Co. Appears Last Evening in Two Operas, "Cleopatra" and "Cavalleria Rusticana."

Janesville music lovers greatly enjoyed the operas, "Cleopatra" and "Cavalleria Rusticana," as presented by the Sheehan Opera company at Myers Theatre last evening. Both operas were sung in English and it wasn't necessary to keep your eyes glued to the libretto to find out what was being sung. Neither did one have to curve their hand about their ear to a distracted effort to hear the words.

The new opera, "Cleopatra," dealt with the last hours of the famous Egyptian queen and of the visit to her palace by Octavius, the Roman general, representing the war waged by Octavian Rome. The part of Cleopatra was sung by Mercedes Dalmada, charming her attendant, by Ruth Marshall Dye, and Octavius, the Roman, by Joseph P. Sheehan.

Cavalleria Rusticana (Rustic Chivalry) was sung in a finely artistic manner. The words were clear and distinct and carried to every part of the house. The part of Turridu, the young soldier, was sung by Joseph P. Sheehan; Santuzza, the village maiden, by Ruth Marshall Dye; Alfio, a tempter, by Arthur Deane; Leonora, wife of Alfio, formerly sweetheart of Turridu, by Ruth Marshall Dye; Lucio, mother of Turridu, by Mercedes Dalmada.

Both operas were directed by Mr. Basil Horstall and were greatly enjoyed by the auditors.

WELCOME SUNSHINE ENDS RAINY MONTH

Sunday, First Bright Day in Weeks. Attracts Thousands to Enjoy Its Warmth and Balm.

Sunday, the first bright day in almost a month of clouds and rain, was welcomed by thousands who took advantage of the fair weather to enjoy the out-of-doors. Crowds of persons visited the cemeteries throughout the day and decorated the graves of loved ones with plants and flowers. From morning until evening there was a steady stream to both Oak Hill and Mt. Olivet, street cars were taxed to their capacity and there were hundreds of automobiles and carriages.

A continuation of yesterday's fair weather and Old Sol smiled down with summer-time warmth on the war veterans as they paid touching tribute to their departed comrades.

The sunshine was persuasive of the season's first real pleasure parties and large numbers took lengthy automobile journeys, others enjoyed launch rides up the river, while picnic parties dotted the banks. The fishing season, which opened yesterday, also attracted a good many who tested the susceptibility of the finny tribe with hook and bait. There were numerous excursions to the nearby lakes and resorts, both by train and automobile.

WOMAN'S PAGE

SIDE TALKS

By RUTH CAMERON

A CONTRAST AND A LESSON.

Two elderly women sat in the seat in front of me on the trolley the other day.

One wore a rather fussy dark green suit and a green hat with a pink feather on it.

She looked well enough.

The other wore a simple black suit relieved by a white collar and cuffs, and on her silver hair a little black hat, exquisitely smart in its perfect simplicity.

She looked adorable.

The Colors They Could Wear and the Colors They Should Wear.

Whenever I see a contrast like that I wonder why all elderly women do not dress, not in the colors that they could wear, but in the colors that they should wear.

They belong to age, they are as exquisitely in keeping with it as the scent of roses is in keeping with the witchery of a June night.

An old lady with silver hair in a gown of lavender is one of the satisfying glimpses of life. It gives one a sense of things as they should be. It is like a stately house fittingly furnished with beautiful old mahogany furniture instead of with handsome unsuitable modern fittings. It is like an old-fashioned garden still sweet with tea roses and sweet Williams and mignonette.

Lavender, White, Grey and Black.

But suppose lavender is not becoming, you say. I can't believe that there would not be some shade of lavender which would be becoming to any white haired lady. Besides, lavender is not the only color which belongs to the afternoon of life. Dignified black with the relief of as much white as is necessary, certain shades of grey—not the horrible drab greys but the soft, silvery greys and the greys with a hint of blue or pink or lavender in them,—and for those gowns the softer shades of white, the white of white wool or of old lace, are all by right of eminent domain the property of the grey or silver haired lady.

Surely among them all any elderly woman can design costumes which while they may not make her look young, will do something infinitely better than that,—they will make her look on exquisite old lady which is one of the sweetest things in all the world.

Questions and Answers.

Miss Stenographer wants to know if I think it is a good thing to read on the trolley cars.

Reply.—I suppose you mean is it good for the eyes. I once asked my oculist the same question and he answered, "It's not the best thing for the eyes but that's where I do most of my reading." Of course busy people have few chances to keep up with the literature of the day. If you do decide to risk the possible harm, choose a good light as possible, don't let the shadow of objects you are passing fall on your book, don't read too long at a time, don't read through a veil and don't read at night.

me, because she has a position here. During meals and the evening in fact all the time that she is at home, she irritates the children until my husband has told me that I must get rid of her in order to keep harmony in the family. At first I flatly refused to ask my sister to go, but now conditions have grown so bad that I feel I must do something in order to have my home a fit place to bring up children in. I know that it is my duty to keep my sister, but what can I do? My husband is desperate.

A SISTER, WIFE AND MOTHER.

Your duty is to your husband and children. Tell your sister that she must get a room somewhere else so that your home will be free from friction. Even though she promises to do her part to keep harmony, insist upon her going. Your husband and children cannot be happy for any length of time with her in the home.

Household Hints

THINGS WORTH KNOWING.

To keep ivory do not put in water; wrap in cloth wet in cold water and place on ice.

To keep lettuce crisp, wrap in paper bag and place on ice. It will keep a week.

When preparing greens, especially of the wild variety, nothing should be taken for granted, since invisible worms are very difficult to dislodge.

After washing them almost leaf by leaf and through several waters, if you let them stand an hour or more in strong salt water you may be surprised to find that more worms, stung by the salt, have dropped to the bottom of the pan, when but for this precaution their presence would have remained undiscovered.

An excellent mulligan can be made from the gummy substance obtained from peach, cherry or plum trees.

Place gum in a bottle and pour over it enough water to cover; seal tightly and let stand for four or five days.

To Get Rid of Ants. Do not wait until ants are in the house to begin the war against them, but look for the root of the evil in the yard and cellar. Flood the hills with coal oil.

Where this endures grass or vines, pour in a pail of water. If persistent in this treatment the ants will leave the premises.

NEW GARDEN HOES.

The old-fashioned hoe mounted on a handle has been modified into various forms. One has a blade more like a crescent; another an inverted heart shaped blade which does better work in killing up, especially around tomatoes, etc., than the old type. He sure the handles are long enough—even if they have to be spliced—because a great deal of the fatigue of hoeing or other work with a handle tool is caused by working with the short handle. Efficiency and right height can be applied in the garden as well as in the kitchen.

THE TABLE.

Baked Chicken Custard.—A fine way to use leftover chicken, a delicious dish. Cut off every scrap of meat from chicken bones and pass it through meat chopper. Measure meat and mix it with an equal amount of boiled rice; season to taste with salt and pepper and press together in a round form in the center of baking dish. Make a custard of two beaten eggs, one pint milk and two tablespoons flour moistened with a little milk or water. If you have a few cooked peas add those also. Pour custard around chicken and rice and bake until custard is set. Fine hot or cold.

Fruit Float.—Two cups granulated sugar, juice of one lemon, one tablespoon butter, one quart boiling water, four tablespoons cornstarch wet with cold water. Cook until thick. When cold pour over four oranges and two bananas which have been cut into small pieces and sprinkled with sugar. Cover top with shredded cocoanut and serve cold. This will serve eight.

Beef Loaf.—One pound ground pork, one pound ground beef, ten crackers, one and one-half cups cream, two eggs, salt and pepper to taste. Make in two loaves. Bake one and one-half hours or until done.

Asparagus Salad.—Boil a nice bunch of asparagus twenty minutes; add teaspoon salt, cook until tender (perhaps ten minutes). Drain carefully so as not to break. Cool and just before serving place on ice for a few minutes, then cover with salad or mayonnaise dressing. Garnish with chopped parsley if one likes.

SIMPLE "FIRST AID."

Poison may be rendered harmless by immediately swallowing two gills of sweet oil. The oil will neutralize every form of vegetable or mineral poison.

Sleeplessness may be overcome by drinking a cup of hot cocoa, without sugar, just before retiring.

For burns, cover a soft cloth with a thick layer of raw white potato and apply to the burned part with the potato next to the skin.

Sick Headache.—A Turkish towel wrung out of very hot water and applied to the back of the neck will often relieve sick headache in a few minutes.

To cool beds, slip a sheet of Chinese matting between the sheet and mattress. Fill a hot water bottle with ice water, which lay beneath the pillow on a hot night.

For tired, burning feet, bathe them in hot water to which a little good vinegar has been added, then rub with alcohol.

GENERAL FEDERATION OF WOMAN'S CLUB IN CONVENTION

[SPECIAL TO THE GAZETTE.]

Portland, Ore., May 31.—Several hundred women of national prominence were here today awaiting the convening of the council of the General Federation of Women's Clubs.

The council will be called to order tomorrow by Mrs. Percy V. Pennybacker of Austin, Texas, president of the organization, and for three days almost every activity, literary, literary, scientific, religious, social, education, civic and political, effort, will be discussed.

The lobbies of the prominent hotels were filled today with handsomely gowned women, who gathered in groups, discussed the topics to be considered at the council meetings.

A reception to the visitors will be held at the Multnomah hotel tonight. Governor Witham will be in attendance; Mrs. Sarah Evans, president of the Oregon Federation of Women's Clubs, and H. R. Abee, mayor of Portland, will deliver addresses of welcome.

Samuel Smith of Ohio, first vice-president of the General Federation of Women's Clubs, will respond. It was believed that two thousand persons would be in attendance, as that many invitations were issued.

You will need no other agent to sell your property than a classified ad. They do the business.

Glimpses of Married Life

By MRS. EVA LEONARD

"Of course you had a good time at the dance. No one could help it who was such a belle, but we were more or less separated, so I tell me about it." The friends were sitting in the cozy living room the day after the dance at the Scotts' country home.

"I met some fine people who have just come on from Newport. One of them has been on a long cruise in his own yacht this summer. I am going horse-back riding with him tomorrow."

answered Olive.

"You know the house party lasts a whole week longer."

"You met young Frazer, of course?"

"Yes, he was polite, but he is all absorbed in a New York girl who belongs to his set at home." Olive was busy watching her embroidery.

"What did you think of Burk, the bookkeeper?"

"Neil, this is like the shorter cat-chiam. He asked to call, and I said he might, and to save time I'll add that I liked the doctor, too. He was the life of the crowd when he was with us, but he devoted most of his time to his sister. Now are you satisfied?" And Olive merrily reached over and stuck her embroidery needle into Nell's knee.

"We all like him," said Nell, drawing back with a knowing look. "His sister is a very pleasant woman. You know he wanted her to meet everybody. I had quite a visit with her."

"How could you visit at a dance?" asked Olive in surprise.

"I sat out one dance with her. Dick saw I was tired and proposed it."

"You didn't dance with Dick all the time, I hope."

"No, I was spared any such awful fate by my borrowed plumage, in which I looked quite stunning. My program was filled early. I thoroughly enjoyed it all."

"I met a Mrs. Montague."

"She is a sister of the young man who is to take me riding," interrupted Olive.

"Indeed! She is coming over to see the baby. Her little boy is four years old. I should like to have the Montagues and the brother."

"Mr. Joplin," put in Olive.

"Here for dinner," continued Nell.

"I hope you can," Olive was enthusiastic. "They are worth while people."

"People with yachts usually are," chaffed Nell.

"Neil, I didn't mean the money. I meant the people were worth while. Of course money would not be a drawback. No one is foolish enough to pretend that it would."

He was the life of the crowd when he was with us, but he devoted most of his time to his sister. Now are you satisfied?" And Olive merrily reached over and stuck her embroidery needle into Nell's knee.

"We all like him," said Nell, drawing back with a knowing look. "His sister is a very pleasant woman. You know he wanted her to meet everybody. I had quite a visit with her."

"How could you visit at a dance?" asked Olive in surprise.

"I sat out one dance with her. Dick saw I was tired and proposed it."

"You didn't dance with Dick all the time, I hope."

"No, I was spared any such awful fate by my borrowed plumage, in which I looked quite stunning. My program was filled early. I thoroughly enjoyed it all."

"I met a Mrs. Montague."

"She is a sister of the young man who is to take me riding," interrupted Olive.

"Mr. Joplin," put in Olive.

"Here for dinner," continued Nell.

"I hope you can," Olive was enthusiastic. "They are worth while people."

"People with yachts usually are," chaffed Nell.

"Neil, I didn't mean the money. I meant the people were worth while. Of course money would not be a drawback. No one is foolish enough to pretend that it would."

"Of course you had a good time at the dance. No one could help it who was such a belle, but we were more or less separated, so I tell me about it." The friends were sitting in the cozy living room the day after the dance at the Scotts' country home.

"I met some fine people who have just come on from Newport. One of them has been on a long cruise in his own yacht this summer. I am going horse-back riding with him tomorrow."

answered Olive.

"You know the house party lasts a whole week longer."

"You met young Frazer, of course?"

"Yes, he was polite, but he is all absorbed in a New York girl who belongs to his set at home." Olive was busy watching her embroidery.

"What did you think of Burk, the bookkeeper?"

"Neil, this is like the shorter cat-chiam. He asked to call, and I said he might, and to save time I'll add that I liked the doctor, too. He was the life of the crowd when he was with us, but he devoted most of his time to his sister. Now are you satisfied?" And Olive merrily reached over and stuck her embroidery needle into Nell's knee.

CHAPTER XXV. I Burn a Few Bridges.

Went over the castle rather hurriedly. I thought, but he explained that Saks merely wanted a general idea of the structure; he would return another day to make a careful inspection.

"I dare say you are surprised that I should be willing to pay double your original price for Schloss Rothhoefen," he ventured, pausing in the corridor to light a cigarette. We were on our way to the top of the east wing.

"Oh, no," I said calmly. "I am aware that treasure is buried here. As a matter of fact, I've tried to unearth it myself, but without success. I wish you better luck."

"Thanks," said he laconically, after the first swift glance of inquiry. "It is doubtless a fairly tale, handed down by tradition. I take no stock in it. My principal object in acquiring Rothhoefen is to satisfy a certain vanity which besets me. I have it on excellent authority that my ex-father-in-law—the man Titus, you know—talks of buying the property and performing the stupendous, characteristic American feat of removing it, stone and timber, just as it is, to his estate north of New York city. No one but a vulgar, purse proud American would think of doing such a thing."

The news staggered me. Could there be anything in what he said? If it was true that Jasper Titus contemplated such a quixotic move there could be but one compelling force behind the whim—sentiment. But not sentiment on the part of Jasper Titus.

"I cannot believe that he considers doing such a thing," I said, rather blankly. "You see, if any one should know, I am that one. He has not approached me, that of you may be sure."

He Was Holding the Doll at Arm's Length.

He did not appear to be interested. "My information is not authoritative, Mr. Smart," said he. "It came to me through my representatives who conferred with his lawyers a fortnight ago in regard to certain difficulties that had existed between us. From what they were able to gather, the idea has taken root in the old man's head. Now, I want to buy this place for no other reason than to tell him that he hasn't enough money in his possession to purchase it from me. Do you see? Vanity, you may call it, as I do, but it pleases me to coddle it."

Very thoughtfully I strode along beside him. Would I be serving the countless ill or well by selling the place to Tarnowsky? It was her whim, of course, and it was a foolish one.

"Suppose that he offered you twice what you are to pay me for the place," said I, struck by a sudden thought.

He laughed easily. "You will not, it seems, acquit me of capidity, Mr. Smart. I should not sell to him under any consideration. That is final. Take it or leave it."

By this time we were in the rooms once occupied by the countess. He glanced about the apartment carelessly. "Deserted, I observe," he remarked with a queer smile.

My heart almost stood still. "Eh? What do you mean?"

"If I am not mistaken, these are the rooms once occupied by your valet's wife. Am I right?"

"I steeled myself. 'She has gone away,' I said. 'Couldn't stand the climate.'"

"I see," said he, but he was still smiling. "How does your valet stand it?"

"Nicely," said I, with a conscious blush.

"I mean the separation, of course."

"Certainly! He is used to it."

"Isn't it rather odd that he should still think she is here in the castle?"

"Does he?" I murmured.

"Inquired for her when I encountered him downstairs. He said she was quite well this morning, except for a headache."

"She is subject to headaches, I believe," said I, with the utmost nonchalance. He lifted his right eyebrow slightly, but said no more on the subject.

A pile of rubbish lay heaped in one corner of the room, swept up and left there by the big Schmitz to await the spring housecleaning season. I presume, Tarnowsky at first eyed the heap curiously, then rather intently. Suddenly he strode across the room and gingerly rooted among the odds and ends with the toe of his highly polished boot.

To my horror a dilapidated doll detached itself and rolled out upon the floor, a well remembered treasure of Rosemary's and so unique in appearance that I doubt if there was another in the world like it. Indeed, I have a distinct recollection of being told that the child's father had painted in the extraordinary features and had himself decorated the original faience locks with single stripes of red and white and blue, a sardonic tribute to the home land of her mother.

I turned away as he stooped and picked up the soiled, discarded effigy. When next I looked at him out of the corner of my eye he was holding the doll at arm's length and staring at it with a fixed gaze. I knew that he recognized it. There could be no doubt in his mind as to the identity of that telltale object. My heart was thumping fiercely.

An instant later he rejoined me, but not a word did he utter concerning the strange discovery he had made. His face was set and pallid, and his eyes were misty. Involuntarily I looked to see if he had the doll in his hand and in that glance observed the bulging surface of his coat pocket.

In silence we stood there awaiting the reappearance of Saks, who had gone into one of the adjoining rooms. I confess that my hand trembled as I lighted a fresh cigarette. He was staring moodily at the floor, his hands clasped behind his back. Something smacking of real intelligence ordered me to hold my tongue. I smoked placidly, yet waited for the outburst. It did not come. It never came! He kept his thoughts, his emotions, to himself, and for that single display of restraint on his part I shall always remember him as a true descendant of the nobility.

We tramped down the long flights of stairs side by side, followed by the supercilious Mr. Saks, who did all of the talking. He was, I think, discoursing on the extraordinary ability of ancient builders, but I am not absolutely certain. I am confident Tarnowsky did not hear a word the fellow said.

In my study we found Poopendyke and the two strangers.

"Have you made out the papers?" demanded the count harshly. An ugly gleam had come to his eyes, but he did not direct it toward me. Indeed, he seemed to avoid looking at me at all.

"Yes, Count Tarnowsky," said the lawyer. "They are ready for the signatures."

"Perhaps Mr. Smart may have reconsidered his offer to sell," said Tarnowsky. "Let him see the contracts."

"I have not reconsidered," I said quietly.

"You may sign here, Mr. Smart," said the notary as he gave me the document, a simple contract, I found.

"Jasper Titus will offer more than I can afford to pay," said the count. "Please do not feel that I am taking an unfair advantage of you. I am absolutely certain that he wants to buy this place for his granddaughter, a descendant of barons."

The significance of this remark was obvious, and it was the nearest he ever came to uttering the conviction that had been formed in that illuminating five minutes upstairs. If he suspected—and I think he did—he preferred not to ask the questions that must have been searing his curious brain. It was a truly wonderful demonstration of self-restraint. I would have given much to be able to read his innermost thoughts, to watch the perplexed movements of his mind.

"Schloss Rothhoefen is yours, Count Tarnowsky," said I. "It is for you to say whether his whim shall be gratified."

His lips twitched. I saw his hand touch the bulging coat pocket with a swift, passing movement.

"Will you be good enough to sign, Mr. Smart?" he said coldly. He glanced at his watch. "My time is valuable. When can you give possession?"

"The day the deed is transferred."

"That will be in less than three days. I have satisfied myself that the title is clear. There need be no delay."

We signed the contract after I had requested Poopendyke to read it aloud to me. It called for the payment of 50,000 kronen, or a little over $2,000, at the time of signing. His lawyer handed me a package of crisp banknotes and asked me to count them. I did so deliberately, the purchaser looking on with a sardonic smile.

"Correct," said I, laying the package on the table. He bowed very deeply.

"Are you satisfied, Mr. Smart, that there are no counterfeits among them?" he inquired, with polite irony; then to his lawyer: "Take the gentleman's receipt for the amount in the presence of witnesses. This is a business transaction, not a game of chance." It was the insult perfect.

As he prepared to take his departure he assumed an insinuating air of apology and remarked to me:

"I owe you an apology, Mr. Smart. There was a time when I did you an injustice. I suspected you of keeping your mistress here. Pray forgive my error."

Five days later I was snugly ensconced in the ducal suit at the Bristol, overlooking the Kartnerringstrasse, bereft of my baronial possessions, but not at all sorry. My romance had been short lived. It is one thing to write novels about medieval castles and quite another thing to try to write a novel in one of them. I trust I may never again be guilty of such arrogant stupidity as to think that an American born citizen can become a feudal baron by virtue of his dollars and cents any more than an American born girl can hope to be a real, dyed in the wool countess, or duchess because some one needs the money more than she does. It would be quite as impossible, contrariwise, to transform a noble duke into a plain American citizen, so there you are, even up.

My plans were made. After a fortnight in Vienna I expected to go west to London for the autumn and then back to New York. Strange to relate, I was homesick. Never before had my thoughts turned so restlessly, so wistfully to the haunts of my boyhood days. I began to long for the lights of Broadway (which I had scornfully despised in other days) and the gay peacocking of Fifth avenue at 4 in the afternoon. It seemed to me that nowhere in all the world was life so joyous and blithe and worth while as in "old New York"; nowhere were the theaters so attractive, nowhere such restaurants. Even, in retrospect, the subway looked alluring, and as for the Fifth avenue stages, they were too beautiful for words. Ah, what a builder of unreal things a spell of homesickness may become if one gives it half a chance!

As for Schloss Rothhoefen, I had it on excellent authority (no less a person than Conrad Schmick himself) that barely had I shaken the dust of the place from myself before the new master put into execution a most extraordinary and incomprehensible plan of reconstruction. In the first place, he gave all the servants two weeks' notice and then began to raze the castle from the bottom upward instead of the other way round, as a sensible person might have been expected to do. He was knocking out the walls in the cellars and digging up the stone floors with splendid disregard for that ominous thing known as a cataclysm. The grave question in the minds of the servants was whether the usual and somewhat mandatory two weeks' notice wouldn't prove a trifle too long after all. In fact, Hawkes, with an inspiration worthy of an office boy, managed to produce a sick grandmother and got away from the place at the end of one week, although having been paid in full for two.

The day on which I left for Paris still saw Tarnowsky at work, with his masons, heroically battering down the walls of the grim old stronghold; and I chuckled to myself. It was quite evident that he hadn't found the hiding place up to that time.

After several days in Paris I took myself off to London. I was expecting letters at Claridge's, where I always take rooms—not because I think it is the best hotel in London, but because I am to some extent a creature of habit. My mother took me to Claridge's when I was a boy, and I saw a wonderful personage at the door, whom I was pleased to call the king. Ever since then I have been going to Claridge's, and while my first king is dead there is one in his place, who bids fair to live long, albeit no one shouts encouragement to him. He wears the most gorgeous buttons I've ever seen, and I doubt if King Solomon himself could have been more regal, certainly not Nebuchadnezzar. He works from 7 in the morning until 7 at night, and he has an imperial scorn for anything smaller than half a sovereign.

There were many letters waiting there for me, but not one from the Countess Alene. I had encouraged the hope that she might write to me. It was the least she could do in return for all that I had done for her notwithstanding my wretched behavior on the last day of our association. While I had undoubtedly offended in the most flagrant manner, still my act was not unpardonable. There was tribute, not outrage, in my behavior.

Poopendyke fidgeted a good deal with the scanty results of my literary labors, rattling the typed pages in a most insinuating way. He oiled his machine with accusative frequency, but I failed to respond. I was in no mood for writing. He said to me one day:

"I don't see why you keep a secretary, Mr. Smart. I don't begin to earn my salt."

"Salt, Mr. Poopendyke," said I, "is the cheapest thing I know of. Now, if you had said pepper I might pause to reflect. But I am absolutely, inexorably opposed to rating anything on a salt basis. If you—"

"You know what I mean," he said stiffly. "I am of no use to you."

"Ah," said I triumphantly, "but you forget. Who is it that draws the salary checks for yourself and Britton and who keeps the accounts straight? Who, I repeat? Why, you, Mr. Poopendyke. You draw the checks. Isn't that something?"

"If I didn't know you so well I wouldn't hesitate to call you a blooming fool, Mr. Smart," said he, but he grinned as he said it.

"But he who hesitates is lost," said I. "This is your chance. Don't let it slip." He looked at me so steadily for a moment that I was in some fear he would not let it slip.

Before I had been in London a week it became perfectly clear to me that I could not stretch my stay out to anything like a period of two months. Indeed, I began to think about booking my passage home inside of two weeks. I was restless, dissatisfied, homesick.

On the ninth day I sent Poopendyke to the booking office of the steamship company with instructions to secure passage for the next sailing of the Mauretania, and then lived in a state of positive dread for fear the confounded American tourists might have gobbled up all of the cabins. They are always going home it seems to me, and they are always trying to get on a single unfortunate ship. In all my experience abroad I've never known a time when Americans were not tumbling over each other trying to get back to New York in time to catch a certain train for home, wherever that may be. But Poopendyke managed it somehow. He must have resorted to bribery.

'TIZ FOR ACHING, SORE, TIRED FEET

'TIZ' for tender, puffed-up, burning, calloused feet and corns.

You can be happy-footed just like me. Use "TIZ" and never suffer with tender, raw, burning, blistered, swollen, tired, smelly feet. "TIZ" and only "TIZ" takes the pain and soreness out of corns, callouses and bunions.

As soon as you put your feet in a "TIZ" bath, you just feel the happiness soaking in. "How good your poor, old feet feel. They want to dance for joy."

"TIZ" is grand. "TIZ" instantly draws out all the poisonous exudations which puff up your feet and cause sore, inflamed, aching, sweaty, smelly feet.

Get a 25 cent box of "TIZ" at any drug store or department store. Get instant foot relief. Laugh at foot sufferers who complain. Because your feet are never, never going to bother or make you limp any more.

Dinner Stories

The serious-looking man was trying hard to listen to the speaker's eloquence, but the squalling of an infant in the row of seats directly ahead gave him little opportunity. Annoyance gave way to irritation, and irritation in turn was superseded by resentment. He leaned forward, touched the mother on the shoulder and in a dispassionate tone asked:

"Why, no, sir. Why do you ask?"

"Merely because I was about to suggest that if he had not been christened you might name him 'Good Idea.'"

"And why 'Good Idea?' asked the woman.

"Because," the man struggled hard to repress his feelings. "It should be carried out."

"Ladies an' gen'lmen," said Sam Johnson to the invited guests who had filled his cabin to overflowing since 8 p. m. "I'm mighty sorry to have to tell you all that there ain't goin' to be no party tonight, cause that white man what owed me fifteen cents ain't paid me yet!"

"Why don't you have your initials engraved on the handle of your umbrella?"

"Nothing doing. If anybody borrows this umbrella I want to have some chance to borrow it back again."

"What is your son going to be when he grows up, Mr. Jigthorpe?" asked the visitor, patting little Willie on the head.

"Well, really, I don't know yet," replied the proud parent, "but from the size of his appetite I think he has a decided bent toward the beef-packing industry."

LEARNING TO DRIVE

ADVICE THAT BEGINNER WILL DO WELL TO HEED.

Prospective Autoist Must Familiarize Himself with the Machine, is Declaration of Expert.

Take your time during first month of driving, keep cool and have a reason for everything you do and above all, think—do not forget it, think—and you will get along all right.

Know what each pedal is for, know what each button will do, but be sure about it, and do not lose your head.
Then you will not get into any trouble.
Early morning is the best time to learn the rudiments of driving. Go slowly and keep to the right. Get in the habit of watching for street cars both in the street you are driving on and in the cross streets.

After a short period, when you feel satisfied you have mastered the elementary things, drive later in the day when the traffic is heavy. But be careful. This will acquaint you to the crowds. During the learning period drive slowly. Do not speed up. Most of the trouble comes from driving too fast.

Find out all about your car and treat it with consideration. Watch lubrication. You do not go without food for several days, nor should you allow your car to be without sufficient oil and water.

And remember your car is a piece of machinery. It is not infallible. Do not expect the impossible of it.

Adjusting Carburetor.
Carburetor trouble, which is usually prevalent at this time of the year as a result of changing atmospheric conditions, usually is due not so much to the atmospheric as to the rash judgment attempted by the inexperienced motorist. In seeking a new adjustment, whether of fuel or air, care should be observed not to move the adjusting device too far at a time, and to wait until its effect is perfectly evident before moving it again. If no change is evident, the device should be restored to its former position and some other adjustment tried, if possible. In carburetors possessing several means of regulation it is possible by a few careless movements to produce a condition of hopeless confusion from which only an expert carburetor man can extricate the luckless experimenter.

How Many Tires We Use.
In round numbers there are now
1,600,000 automobiles in the country, and not one of them can possibly get along with less than four tires a year.
The most conservative estimate must place the number per car at six tires a year. This would be 9,600,000 tires.
In addition there are scheduled for manufacture during 1915 not less than 600,000 new cars, which must be fitted with at least 2,400,000 new tires, making a total of at least 12,000,000 tires.
In reality the number is much greater,
even though a million or more tires are "retreated," fitted with "covers," etc. Taxicabs and some of the high-powered converted racing cars could not possibly get along with less than 20 tires a year. The money spent for tires in 1914 in the United States alone probably exceeded $200,000,000.

Detail Needed.
"I am looking out for a porch club-ber. Can you direct me where to go?"
"Well, sir, until you particularize, I don't know whether you want me to direct you to a florist or to a policeman."

If you have any article which you wish to sell let the public know it

NOTICE OF HEARING
STATE OF WISCONSIN,<

Five Hundred Mile Record Expected to Tumble in Big Sweepstakes Race When Stars of Old and New World Hook Up in Desperate Speed Conflict

If speed counts for anything, Rene Thomas' record of 82.47 miles an hour for the Indianapolis 500-mile race is sure to fall. Six contestants in this year's event, Wilcox, De Palma, Resta, Cooper, Anderson, and Porporato, have already bettered Thomas' fastest lap of 94.75 miles an hour, during the elimination trials for the contest, and may be expected to travel even faster in the race itself.

A more evenly balanced field was never seen. This itself will speed up the contest, every entrant having to extend himself to the utmost to stay in the running. One of the bunch, more lucky or more daring than the rest, is going through without a hitch, and finish the race, with probably a new record dangling from his belt.

The favorites in this melee are Wilcox, Resta, De Palma, Cooper, and Anderson. In order, with Porporato practically on an even basis with the rest, though his speedway experience has not been as great as that of the others, and, therefore, he may not step along as fast.

Considering as groups, Wilcox, Cooper, and Anderson, the Stutz entrants, flying America's colors, may be said to have an even chance against De Palma, Resta, and Porporato, representing Europe with Mercedes, Peugeot, and Sunbeam cars, respectively.

In the time trials the Stutz trio slightly bested the European delegation; this, however, may not be an absolutely true criterion of the latter's ability, inasmuch as it may have been holding back a little, to keep its true form under cover.

Whatever the outcome, it is certain that one of the most spectacular races on the speedway will result. With six cars, all of them good for more than ninety-five miles an hour, to set the pace, a burst of speed is bound to materialize that will scorch the bricks before the race is over.

AT THE APOLLO.

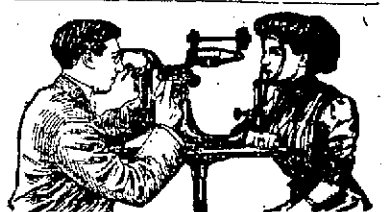

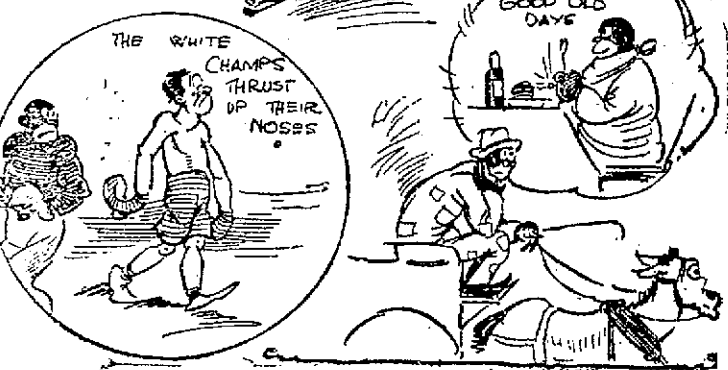

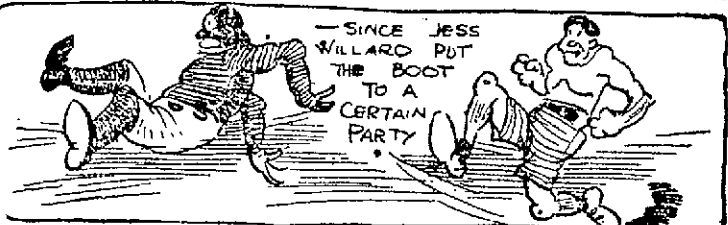

John Barrymore in "Are You a Mason?" Today.

Through his former screen appearances in "An American Citizen" and "The Man from Mexico," John Barrymore, the popular young comedian, earned the right to be ranked as the foremost laugh-maker that ever appeared on the screen. In the five-part film adaptation of Leo Ditrichstein's world-famous farce, "Are You a Mason?" the attraction at the Apollo today, on the Paramount program, he surpasses the distinction of his previous triumphs and attains a success that can be described only by the word phenomenal. His amazing powers of humorous facial expression and ludicrous gesture have never been seen to better advantage than in this play, and the feature, aside from the importance derived from the long and successful career of the original play, must be considered one of the greatest film comedies ever produced. John Barrymore is the personification of the humor of the plot, and in his hands the character of Perry, the frivolous young husband becomes one of the most comic personages ever screened.
